

Standards of Education and Practice for Nurses New to Care Home Nursing

Understanding not only how systems in which we work and can't ignore the importance of leadership across a field document out lines how the education and practice based standards can be achieved through various means to obtain evidence to support learning and demonstrate competence.

It is possible a assessor, supervisor system should be in place to support the nurses into the career progression.

It is a practice assessor is available to the assessor who would a mentor qualification or equivalent and have attended the yearly support learning practices update. The assessor will be governed by the NMC Code of conduct and the professional must act in a professional manner so as to safeguard patients at all times.

If the nurses experience difficulties even competence with the role then the assessor will instigate a discussion with the nurses and the manager to get the best opportunity in order to identify the learning needs and offer support.

The Practice Portfolio

The portfolio is designed to promote an open and honest discussion between the Registered Nurse and the allocated assessor, supervisor to identify the learning needs. The portfolio is a resource to support the Registered Nurse.

Project Background and Methodology

The Nursing Institute (NI) was commissioned by NHSE and NHSE, and Health Education England (HEE), to undertake research to support the development of education and practice standards for registered nurses new to the care of the sector during the current professional development requirements.

Care homes provide care for those with a mental health condition and yet work in a care environment that continues to be regarded as a 'closed' service with the registered nursing workforce often overlooked and on a day to day basis not recognised as a 'frontline' workforce. The research was commissioned by NHSE and on a day to day basis not recognised as a 'frontline' service.

Interviews were analysed and coded with the result that the majority of respondents considered the current standards to be appropriate and the majority of respondents considered the current standards to be appropriate and the majority of respondents considered the current standards to be appropriate.

A further reference group meeting was held in October and the findings of the survey were shared with the group. The concept of a portfolio to be used as a set of competency based standards was shared with the reference group. It was unanimously agreed that a portfolio would be an excellent means of recording the registered nurses' professional development in a way that requires particular skills at recognition of professional actors' own away from the workplace.

It was proposed that the education and practice standards have been developed or registered nurses now to work in the care of the sector of the nurses may go with a wealth of experience and expertise in the various areas of the industry. It was also agreed that the registered nurses would not be on professional needs and proceed to develop specific skills in their conditions and develop standards to enable them to lead a team and be responsible for a group of residents. Following the meeting in October the reference group were sent a draft outline of the portfolio and education and practice standards. These were also sent to the care of the representatives and the CN Adv Soc for Care Home Nursing. Additional suggestions and comments were received and have been included where appropriate.

How to use this Portfolio

Maintaining a practice portfolio is a useful way of capturing your experiences and achievements with your work in relation to practice educational standards. It is advised that you have an identified assessor/supervisor/professional provider who can be used as a contact to offer support. This could be a reflective/critical account of learning and experiences with your work in the Care Home sector.

If a practice assessor is available, a day to day assessor will be a mentor/qualifications/competent and available to attend to your support. Learners in practice update.

Guidance for Registered Nurse

Is this your opportunity to establish your own

Do you have the knowledge to understand and analyse the theoretical basis of your learning? Is your practice supported by an evidence-based research base?

Have you the skills to undertake and accept accountability for this activity? Competence in specific skills.

Collecting Evidence

can take various forms

Written accounts - written evidence of what you did in relation to each standard should not exceed 500 words and may relate to that standard or to more than one standard but not normally more than two.

Written evidence should include:

- A reflection on previous experience
- How you based your decision on a particular situation
- Reasons why you believe that this was an effective approach in addressing that situation
- How this demonstrates that standard has been achieved

Documents - produced by other people, policies and procedures, or by the nurse, NICE Guidance and Guidelines

Observation - the assessor observes the nurse carrying out a particular activity. For registered nurses who have
